

'GO4Youth' India's Premier Examination of Environment and Sustainable Development for Undergraduate and post-graduate Students

This is to inform that the TERI is an independent, multi-dimensional organization with capabilities in research, policy, consultancy and implementation. TERI has a dedicated Environment Education and Awareness (EEA) group working on Education for Sustainable Development (ESD) issues. There is an intensive engagement with students through several sustainability driven projects.

GREEN Olympiad is a flagship program initiated in 1999 by TERI. It is designed in an innovative manner so as to test the knowledge level of school students about the key of existence year, environment and sustainable development issues. Marking its 20th year of existence, GO4Youth was launched on its sidelines in 2020. GO4Youth is an annual MCQ based examination for undergraduate and postgraduate students that evaluate environmental consciousness, behaviour and aptitude of an individual. The examination strives to enhance knowledge of students in fields of science, technology, policy, economics and social aspects of the environment, through a case study and thematic based question paper.

Third in the series, the project is taking the shape of a global initiative, with the partnership of UN Sustainable Development Solutions Network (SDSN). This examination aspires to address mandated environmental studies for undergraduate courses in India and is also a step in a direction to achieve SDG 4 (Quality Education) Target 7. The registration will be launched virtually on the GREEN Olympiad webpage, while the online examination will be held in October 2022. For more details on the project, kindly log on to www.teriin.org/olympiad
